Rose Quarter project delayed

The Oregon Transportation Commission met Monday and Tuesday in Lebanon and among their packed-full agenda they agreed to postpone action on the Rose Quarter project for 60-90 days. A special meeting may be held at that time to make a final decision on the need for a full Environmental Impact Statement for the project.

The delay was in response to a letter from Governor Kate Brown that was delivered on Monday indicating her request to delay action on the EIS. The Governor was responding to concerns raised by several key Portland leaders including Mayor Ted Wheeler, Multnomah County Commissioner Jessica Vega Pederson, City Commissioner Chloe Eudaly, Metro Council President Lynn Peterson and others.

Following the meeting attendees had the opportunity to meet informally with the OTC members, new ODOT Director Kris Strickler and key ODOT staff.

Transportation issues in Oregon took a severe negative hit as Rep. Caddy McKeown, D-Coos Bay, indicated in November that she will not run for re-election. Her announcement followed the same announcement by Senator Arnie Roblan, D-Coos Bay, indicating he will not seek re-election to his seat. McKeown was a friend of ACEC and all things transportation during her legislative career and before that as a member of the Port of Coos Bay Board of Directors. We thank her for her service and she will be hard to replace.

On the eastern side of the state Senator Cliff Bentz, R-Ontario, another stalwart in transportation will resign from the Oregon Senate soon to focus solely on running for the Congressional seat opened when Greg Walden decided to step down from his long career. Bentz is a very bright light in transportation policy and his intellect will be greatly missed in Salem. Bentz is in a multi-candidate primary race that features former candidate for Governor, Knute Buehler, former state Senator Jason Atkinson and others.
