Doer to Leader in Three Steps (3-part series) with Leo MacLeod

Strong project managers who want to be leaders are in a tough spot. They are being tapped to lead but were never taught to lead. They can't trust their projects to anyone else. Managing people can be exhausting and unfulfilling. And what little personal time they had is suddenly gone.

Our leadership and communication training/coaching program helps both junior and senior managers understand how to become leaders by knowing themselves, managing their time, and managing people. We throw a lifeline to leaders who are struggling with competing priorities.

The cost of losing and replacing good people is enormous. In a Harvard Business Review study, employees valued professional development the four highest benefit—just behind more pay!

Grow your base of leadership and keep your best people by enrolling today.

Includes a 52-page workbook with templates and handouts, the national bestselling book Emotional Intelligence 2.0 self-assessment. The first five registrants receive a 30-minute confidential phone consultation on their EQ assessment.
